I. Introduction

This document is the Program Standard for the Personal Support Worker program of instruction leading to an Ontario College Certificate delivered by Ontario colleges of applied arts and technology (MTCU funding code 41469).

Development of System-Wide Program Standards

In 1993, the Government of Ontario initiated program standards development with the objectives of bringing a greater degree of consistency to college programming offered across the province, broadening the focus of college programs to ensure graduates have the skills to be flexible and to continue to learn and adapt, and providing public accountability for the quality and relevance of college programs.

The Program Standards and Evaluation Unit of the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities have responsibility for the development, review and approval of system-wide standards for programs of instruction at Ontario colleges of applied arts and technology.

Program Standards

Program standards apply to all similar programs of instruction offered by colleges across the province. Each program standard for a postsecondary program includes the following elements:

- Vocational standard (the vocationally specific learning outcomes which apply to the program of instruction in question),
- Essential employability skills (the essential employability skills learning outcomes which apply to all programs of instruction); and
- General education requirement (the requirement for general education in postsecondary programs of instruction).

Collectively, these elements outline the essential skills and knowledge that a student must reliably demonstrate in order to graduate from the program.

Individual colleges of applied arts and technology offering the program of instruction determine the specific program structure, delivery methods and other curriculum matters to be used in assisting students to achieve the outcomes articulated in the standard. Individual colleges also determine whether additional local learning outcomes will be required to reflect specific local needs and/or interests.

The Expression of Program Standards as Vocational Learning Outcomes

Vocational learning outcomes represent culminating demonstrations of learning and achievement. They are not simply a listing of discrete skills, nor broad statements of knowledge and comprehension. In addition, vocational learning outcomes are interrelated and cannot be viewed in isolation of one another. As such, they should be viewed as a comprehensive whole. They describe performances that demonstrate that significant integrated learning by graduates of the program has been achieved and verified.

Expressing standards as vocational learning outcomes ensures consistency in the outcomes for program graduates, while leaving to the discretion of individual colleges curriculum matters such as the specific program structure and delivery methods.

The Presentation of the Vocational Learning Outcomes

The vocational learning outcome statements set out the culminating demonstration of learning and achievement that the student must reliably demonstrate before graduation.

The elements of the performance for each outcome define and clarify the level and quality of performance necessary to meet the requirements of the vocational learning outcome. However, it is the performance of the vocational learning outcome itself on which students are evaluated. The elements of performance are indicators of the means by which the student may proceed to satisfactory performance of the vocational learning outcome. The elements of performance do not stand alone but rather in reference to the vocational learning outcome of which they form a part.

The Development of a Program Standard

In establishing the standards development initiative, the Government determined that all postsecondary programs of instruction should include vocational skills coupled with a broader set of essential skills. This combination is considered critical to ensuring that college graduates have the skills required to be successful both upon graduation from the college program and throughout their working and personal lives.

A program standard is developed through a broad consultation process involving a range of stakeholders with a direct interest in the program area, including employers, professional associations, universities, secondary schools and program graduates working in the field, in addition to students, faculty and administrators at the colleges themselves. It represents a consensus of participating stakeholders on the essential learning that all program graduates should have achieved.

Updating the Program Standard

The Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities will undertake regular reviews of the vocational learning outcomes for this program to ensure that the Personal Support Worker Program Standard remains appropriate and relevant to the needs of students and employers across the Province of Ontario. To confirm that this document is the most up-to-date release, please contact the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities at the address or email address noted on the inside cover page.

II. Vocational Standard

All graduates of Personal Support Worker programs have achieved the fourteen (14) vocational learning outcomes (VLOs) listed in the following pages, in addition to achieving the essential employability skills (EES) learning outcomes.

Preamble

The Personal Support Worker (PSW) program prepares graduates to provide supportive care* to individuals across the lifespan including clients¹ experiencing cognitive impairment, physical disability and mental health challenges, by assisting them with their activities of daily living*. Graduates may find entry-level employment in a variety of care settings* including community, retirement homes, long-term care homes and hospitals.

As valuable members of the interprofessional care/service team*, graduates develop effective working relationships with team members and participate in the delivery, reporting and documentation of care as directed by the plan of care/service plan*. Graduates use basic assessment and communication skills to identify and document relevant information pertaining to clients' status and report finding to members of the interprofessional care/service team* and/or responsible person. Graduates are accountable for their own actions in the provision of ethical*, client-centred*, client-directed* and culturally relevant* care while recognizing the limits of their knowledge and skills that require collaboration with clients, families, supervisors and/or other members of the interprofessional care/service team. Graduates work in accordance with all applicable legislation and employer's policies, procedures and guidelines while contributing to safe, quality client care.

Graduates use effective communication skills and develop helping relationships* with clients and their families and assist clients with routine activities of daily living* and instrumental activities of daily living* as directed by the plan of care/service plan*. Graduates promote a safe and comfortable environment for all clients and in particular for clients experiencing responsive behaviours*, risk for abuse and/or clients requiring end-of-life care* while ensuring safe environments for themselves and others.

Graduates are committed to ongoing professional development and develop plans to enhance their knowledge and skills. There are opportunities for graduates to pursue further education, qualifications and certifications. Graduates should contact individual colleges for further details.

¹ Client refers to an individual who requires personal care and support services from personal support workers. Clients may come from all ages across the lifespan and may be experiencing one or more physical, cognitive, emotional, spiritual, and/or behavioural challenges. In some care settings, a client may be referred to as a patient or a resident (adapted from ACCC. Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Endnote: The Ontario Council on Articulation and Transfer (ONCAT) maintains the provincial postsecondary credit transfer portal, ONTransfer and the Ontario Postsecondary Transfer Guide (OPTG).

Synopsis of the Vocational Learning Outcomes

Personal Support Worker

The graduate has reliably demonstrated the ability to:

- 1. work within the personal support worker role in community, retirement homes, long-term care homes and/or hospital care settings* in accordance with all applicable legislation and employer's job description, policies, procedures and guidelines.
- 2. act responsibly and be accountable for own actions while recognizing the boundaries of knowledge and skills within the personal support worker role that require collaboration with the clients, families, supervisors and/or other members of the interprofessional care/service team*.

The Vocational Learning Outcomes

1. The graduate has reliably demonstrated the ability to work within the personal support worker role in community, retirement homes, long-term care homes and/or hospital care settings* in accordance with all applicable legislation and employer's job description, policies, procedures and guidelines.

Elements of the Performance

- i. Identify the role that the personal support worker has in the provision of client centred* and client-directed* care.

Performance Objectives

- a) Identify and discuss the general skills and responsibilities associated with the personal support worker role.
 - b) Discuss the concept of quality improvement as it relates to the personal support worker role.
- ii. Identify and compare roles and responsibilities between unregulated care providers* and regulated health professionals*.

Performance Objectives

- a) Identify and discuss the roles and responsibilities of regulated/unregulated health providers as outlined by the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 and the Long-Term Care Homes Act, 2007.
 - b) Describe their own role as a personal support worker and discuss how they may interact with the tasks and responsibilities of other regulated/unregulated health providers.
- iii. Perform activities within the guidelines set by job descriptions, personal competence, as well as current and all applicable legislation.

Performance Objectives

- a) Identify and comply with legislation that is relevant to care settings* where personal support workers work including but not limited to the Occupational Health and Safety Act, R.S.O. 1990; Retirement Homes Act, 2010; Mental Health Act, R.S.O 1990; Long-Term Care Homes Act, 2007; the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 and Home Care and Community Services Act, 1994.

- iv. Identify possible risks and consequences, of a personal support worker performing tasks other than in accordance with their job description, employer policies and guidelines and/or all applicable legislation.

Performance Objectives

- a) Locate and follow information, policies and guidance related to tasks performed as a personal support worker.
 - b) Perform all tasks, including the performance of any controlled acts* in specified circumstances by exception² and/or delegation³, in accordance with all applicable legislation, employer policies and as required following appropriate requirements, guidance and supervision from regulated health professionals*.
 - c) Identify and discuss the potential risk to clients and implications for the personal support worker related to performing controlled acts beyond one's job description, employer policy and all applicable legislation.
- v. Adapt to variations in tasks and routines between care settings*, and within role expectations as defined by employers or clients, and within the bounds of personal ability and all applicable legislation.

Performance Objectives

- a) Distinguish the level of care in a variety of care settings* where personal support workers work (e.g. clients' homes, group homes, long-term care homes, hospitals, retirement homes, community outreach services, support services to assisted living units, as an escort to the clients when traveling, schools, and workplaces).
- b) Discuss the impact of different care settings* (i.e., community, retirement homes, long-term care homes and hospitals) on the role expectations of a personal support worker.

² Exception – as set out in section 29 of the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 (RHPA) as well as in regulations under that statute, persons who are not otherwise authorized to perform controlled acts, may perform certain of those controlled acts in some specified circumstances, such as where the person performing the controlled act is assisting a person with his/her routine activities of daily living.

³ Delegation – the transfer of authority to perform a controlled act* procedure from a person who is authorized to perform the controlled act procedure (e.g. under the authority of a health profession Act) to a person who is not otherwise authorized to perform that controlled act procedure. Delegation requires teaching and authorization that the person accepting the delegation is competent to safely perform the controlled act procedure (College of Nurses of Ontario (2013), Working with Unregulated Care Providers). Any such delegation must also be in accordance with any applicable regulation made under the relevant health profession-specific Act governing the delegating regulated health profession, where that delegating individual's health regulatory college has made such a regulation. In addition, individual health regulatory colleges may also have policies on the subject of delegation by the members of that college.

- vi. Identify and follow employer's policies and procedures that apply to the personal support worker role.

Performance Objectives

- a) Discuss a variety of employer policies and procedures that apply to the personal support worker role while in placement settings.

- b) Identify personal strengths and areas to improve, and relate them to the quality of support provided clients.
- c) Refer issues beyond one's role to the appropriate member of the interprofessional care/service team.
- d) Identify personal needs to maintain/enhance one's own skills and knowledge; seek opportunities to meet identified needs.
- e) Take initiative in pursuing lifelong learning.

- iv. Identify when additional training is required, seek appropriate guidance and take the actions necessary to attain the required knowledge and skill.

Performance Objectives

- a) Identify procedures that are not included in educational or training curriculum and thus require additional training, recognizing that these additional skills may be taught in a specific work situation and in many cases training may be specific to a client.
- v. Exhibit behaviours that contribute to professional* success, such as reliability, regular attendance, punctuality, efficiency, a neat clean appearance, and attitudes and behaviours that reflect positively upon the role and the employer.

Performance Objectives

- a) Give reasonable notice if changes need to be made in the work schedule as per employer policies and procedures.
- b) Treat the belongings of clients with respect and care.
- c) Complete work as assigned and notify responsible person if unable to do so.
- d) Dress appropriately for safety, the work to be done, the setting in which it is to be done and any employer guidelines.
- vi. Apply time management techniques in day-to-day work.

Performance Objectives

- a) Balance multiple demands within a reasonable time frame.
- b) Set priorities in keeping with safe work practices.
- c) Use organizational skills to enhance work efficiency.
- d) Recognize when duties required exceed time constraints or are too complex for the time provided and work with clients and/or supervisor to resolve the issue.
- vii. Identify and use resources and techniques to manage stress in the personal support worker role.

Performance Objectives

- a) Identify signs of stress in themselves, coworkers, clients and primary caregivers.
- b) Discuss potential sources of stress, including workplace and personal sources and physiological and behavioural manifestations of prolonged stress.
- c) Identify and apply appropriate techniques to manage personal stress.
- d) Identify and make use of workplace resources to achieve work-life balance.
- e) Encourage peer support opportunities to create a safe and confidential environment to discuss stress.

Glossary

Routine activities of daily living - Activities of daily living are usually performed by an individual in the course of a normal day. Examples of routine activities of daily living include eating, bathing/personal hygiene, grooming, dressing, toileting, and mobility. Personal support workers provide assistance to clients in the performance of routine activities of daily living in order to support clients' health and well-being, promote their ability to care for themselves and their families, assist them to enjoy leisure and recreation, and help them to contribute to society and the community. The need for, clients' responses to, and the outcomes of performing these activities have been established over time and therefore, are predictable. In addition, what may be considered a routine activity of daily living in one client situation should not be considered a routine activity of daily living for all client situations. Personal support workers assist clients with their routine activities of living according to the written plan of care/service plan, oral directions, employers' policies, practice guidelines and all applicable legislation. These activities are supervised, directly or indirectly, by a regulated health professional/supervisor and/or they are under the direction of the client (adapted from ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Instrumental activities of daily living - Activities related to clients' independent living, involving interactions with the physical and social environment, which may include but are not limited to: preparing food, shopping, and cleaning (adapted from ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Assist with medication - Assistance with medication involves the provision of physical assistance to clients in taking their medications. Assistance may include such activities as opening the container for the individual, providing a glass of water to drink while taking the medication, and/or placing the medication pack in a client's hand. However, some specific legislative schemes may also potentially affect the circumstances and manner in which PSWs can assist clients with their medication in certain settings. For example, personal support workers are not allowed to administer drugs to clients in long-term care home settings. A member of the registered nursing staff in the long-term care home setting may permit a personal support worker to administer a topical where certain prescribed requirements are met. Where assistance with medication involves the performance of a controlled act*, such assistance must be carried out in accordance with the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 (adapted from the ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012 and Long-Term Care Homes Act, 2007).

Care settings – The environments where personal support workers provide supportive care to clients and their families. Settings include, but are not limited to community (private homes, assisted living and supportive housing residences, group homes, schools, hospices and adult day programs), retirement homes, long-term care homes and hospitals.

Client-centred - See supportive care.

Client-directed - See supportive care.

Culturally relevant - See supportive care.

Controlled Acts – As set out in the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 (RHPA), are specified acts considered to be potentially harmful if performed by unqualified individuals. The RHPA provides that no person shall perform a controlled act as set out in the RHPA in the course of providing health care services to an individual unless, a) the person is a member authorized by a health profession Act to perform the controlled act; or b) the performance of the controlled act has been delegated to the person by a member authorized by a health profession Act. In addition, the RHPA statutory scheme also provides for specified exceptions to the general prohibition on the performance of controlled acts by individuals who are not authorized by a health profession Act to perform the controlled act, or to whom the performance of the controlled act has been delegated. For example, the RHPA provides that persons who are not otherwise authorized to perform controlled acts, may perform certain controlled acts in certain specified circumstances, such as when assisting the person with his/her routine activities of daily living.

Dependent individual – A person who requires assistance from another family member, significant other or support person to meet their basic daily needs. A dependent individual can be at any stage in the lifespan including infants, children and youths, adults and older and frail elderly.

End-of-life - See supportive care.

Ethical (ethically) - An individual's fundamental disposition toward what is morally good and right, and the associated action (i.e., the action an individual recognizes or believes to be the best outcome in a particular situation). Principles of ethics in health care include justice, autonomy, beneficence, and non-maleficence (adapted from ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Helping relationship – A professional relationship where clients' needs are central to the relationship and the basis for supportive care provided. Helping relationships are client goal-directed and characterized by empathy, trust, respect and professional client-caregiver boundaries.

Household management tasks - The activities required to support clients and their families within their homes. These services include light housekeeping activities such as cleaning, vacuuming, dusting, laundry, making beds, meal and snack preparation, accompanying clients, shopping, and running errands.

Interprofessional care/service team - Individuals who by working together provide personal and supportive care, and/or home management services to clients to promote optimal levels of health and well-being. The team may consist of different configurations of the client, regulated health professionals and other professionals, unregulated care providers, and other caregivers (including the client's family). Within the team, the client remains its centre and client-directed care its focus (adapted from ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Most accountable person – The individual most able to assist a client with medication and/or care in accordance with the plan of care/service plan and agency policy; may be the client's family member or significant other member of the client's support system.

Plan of care/service plan - A client-centred plan of action that is based on client needs as assessed by the appropriate health care and/or service provider. The plan of care/service plan may be referred to by a variety of names in different agencies or jurisdictions. Client consent is necessary in order for the health care or service provider to provide treatment, care or services. Regulated health professionals and/or supervisors are accountable for the development of the plan of care/service plan, for the safe and competent implementation of these plans, for the evaluation of client outcomes, and for revisions to the plan of care/service plan as required. Personal support workers are responsible for competently carrying out assigned supportive care actions as outlined in the plan of care/service plan and according to established policies and procedures. As members of the interprofessional team, personal support workers provide input into the development and ongoing review of the plan of care/service plan.

Professional - This includes all aspects of performance: communication, ethics, accountability, responsibility, respect, appearance, utilization of knowledge and problem solving, and giving and receiving feedback in a positive manner. While personal support workers are not defined as regulated health care professionals, they are expected to behave in a professional manner. This means that they will conform to the technical, social, and ethical standards expected of an individual within the health care field. (adapted from ACCC Canadian Educational Standards for Personal Care Providers, 2012).

Responsive behaviours – Behaviours that often indicate an unmet need in a person whether cognitive, physical, emotional, social, environmental or other, or a response to circumstances within the social or physical environment that may be frustrating, frightening or confusing to a person (Long-Term Care Homes Act, 2007 Reg. 79/10).

Regulated health professionals - Those individuals who are members of a health regulatory college and who hold a valid certificate of registration from that college, as set out under the Regulated Health Professions Act, (RHPA) 1991, and any accompanying health profession specific Acts (as listed in Schedule I of the RHPA). Regulated Health Professionals (as a function of the RHPA and their respective health profession-specific Acts) have specified profession-specific scopes of practice, professional designations and are able to practise using certain restricted titles. They are also typically authorized to perform certain specified controlled acts as set out in the profession's own health profession-specific Act. Regulated health professionals included in the RHPA that the personal support worker may interact with include but are not limited to; chiropodists, chiropractors, dentists, denturists, dietitians, occupational therapists, optometrists, massage therapists, pharmacists, psychologists, physicians, physiotherapists, registered nurses and registered practical nurses and respiratory therapists.

Restorative care – Care that is focused on the goal of maintaining or improving clients' functional or cognitive capacities in all aspects of daily living, to the extent of his or her abilities in order to promote and maximize independence. Restorative care is integrated into the care that is provided to clients and provided on an ongoing basis. Restorative care is planned, implemented and evaluated by nursing personnel with the assistance of personal support workers and other service providers as needed. Restorative care can include therapy services. Therapy services require specific expertise and must be delivered by appropriate regulated health professionals (e.g. physiotherapists) or care staff working with appropriate education and training under the direction of the regulated health professional, in accordance with all applicable legislation (e.g. Long-Term Care Homes Act, 2007, Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991, Health Profession-Specific Acts, etc.).

Retirement Homes Regulatory Authority (RHRA) – The Retirement Homes Act, 2010 establishes the Retirement Homes Regulatory Authority (RHRA) to oversee administration of the Act with duties that include: licensing retirement homes, handling complaints about homes and enforcing the standards in the Act. Range of standards/requirements including: Mandatory reporting of resident abuse/harm to RHRA Registrar; Residents Bill of Rights; Emergency/Fire Safety plans and staff training; provisions related to restraints, devices; retirement home standards regarding risk of falls, behaviour management, administration of drugs/medication management; other care service standards e.g. feeding, bathing ambulation, dementia care; and Plan of Care.

Supportive Care – Holistic care delivered to the client by the personal support worker which is characterized as client-centred, client-directed and culturally sensitive. In the provision of supportive care as a member of the interprofessional care team and the personal support worker contributes to and is directed by the client's plan of care/service plan and employer's policies and procedures.

Client-centred - An approach to supportive care where the client is viewed as a whole person. Client-centred care involves advocacy, empowerment and respect for the client's autonomy, voice, self-determination and participation in decision making (Canadian Nurses Association, Therapeutic Nurse Client Relationship, 2006).

Client-directed - An approach to supportive care delivery where clients are considered the brokers of care and receive what they ask for. This involves the clients taking an active role, controlling care delivery not just at the point of care, but in the broader healthcare system (Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, 2006).

Culturally relevant - An approach to supportive care delivery that recognizes and values cultural differences and where client and family's cultural beliefs and practices are honoured in care delivery.

End-of-life - An approach to supportive care delivery where, regardless of the care setting, integrated clinical and support services are provided to ensure the best quality of living for dying people and their families (adapted from British Columbia, MOH A Provincial Framework for End of Life Care, 2006).

Unregulated care providers – Care providers or assistant personnel who provide personal care, health services and home management activities. Unregulated care providers are not licensed or registered members of a health regulatory college/body do not have a legislated scope of practice, protected title or a set of professional standards for practice. Personal support workers are unregulated care providers (adapted from the Canadian Nurses Association, 2008).

III. Essential Employability Skills

All graduates of the Personal Support Worker program of instruction must have reliably demonstrated the essential employability skills learning outcomes listed on the following pages, in addition to achieving the vocational learning outcomes.

Context

Essential Employability Skills (EES) are skills that, regardless of a student's program or discipline, are critical for success in the workplace, in day-to-day living and for lifelong learning.

The teaching and attainment of these EES for students in, and graduates from, Ontario's colleges of applied arts and technology are anchored in a set of three fundamental assumptions:

- these skills are important for every adult to function successfully in society today;
- our colleges are well equipped and well positioned to prepare graduates with these skills;
- these skills are equally valuable for all graduates, regardless of the level of their credential, whether they pursue a career path, or they pursue further education.

Skill Categories

To capture these skills, the following six categories define the essential areas where graduates must demonstrate skills and knowledge.

- Communication
- Numeracy
- Critical Thinking & Problem Solving
- Information Management
- Interpersonal
- Personal

Application and Implementation

In each of the six skill categories, there are a number of defining skills, or sub skills, identified to further articulate the requisite skills identified in the main skill categories. The following chart illustrates the relationship between the skill categories, the defining skills within the categories and learning outcomes to be achieved by graduates from all postsecondary programs of instruction that lead to an Ontario College credential.

EES may be embedded in General Education or vocational courses, or developed through discrete courses. However these skills are developed, all graduates with Ontario College credentials must be able to reliably demonstrate the essential skills required in each of the six categories.

SKILL CATEGORY	DEFINING SKILLS: Skill areas to be demonstrated by graduates:	LEARNING OUTCOMES: The levels of achievement required by graduates. The graduate has reliably demonstrated the ability to:
COMMUNICATION	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Reading • Writing • Speaking • Listening • Presenting • Visual literacy 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. communicate clearly, concisely and correctly in the written, spoken and visual form that fulfills the purpose and meets the needs of the audience. 2. respond to written, spoken or visual messages in a manner that ensures effective communication.
NUMERACY	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Understanding and applying mathematical concepts and reasoning • Analyzing and using numerical data • Conceptualizing 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. execute mathematical operations accurately.
CRITICAL THINKING & PROBLEM SOLVING	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Analyzing • Synthesizing • Evaluating • Decision making • Creative and innovative thinking 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. apply a systematic approach to solve problems. 2. use a variety of thinking skills to anticipate and solve problems.

SKILL CATEGORY	DEFINING SKILLS: Skill areas to be demonstrated by graduates:	LEARNING OUTCOMES: The levels of achievement required by graduates. The graduate has reliably demonstrated the ability to:
INFORMATION MANAGEMENT	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Gathering and managing information • Selecting and using appropriate tools and technology for a task or a project • Computer literacy • Internet skills 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. locate, select, organize and document information using appropriate technology and information systems. 2. analyze, evaluate and apply relevant information from a variety of sources.
INTERPERSONAL	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Teamwork • Relationship management • Conflict resolution • Leadership • Networking 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. show respect for the diverse opinions, values, belief systems and contributions of others. 2. interact with others in groups or teams in ways that contribute to effective working relationships and the achievement of goals.
PERSONAL	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Managing self • Managing change and being flexible and adaptable • Engaging in reflective practices • Demonstrating personal responsibility 	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. manage the use of time and other resources to complete projects. 2. take responsibility for one's own actions, decisions and their consequences.

IV. General Education Requirement

Requirement

The General Education Requirement for programs of instruction is stipulated in the Credentials Framework (Appendix A in the Minister's Binding Policy Directive Framework for Programs of Instruction).

While the inclusion of General Education is locally determined for programs of instruction leading to either a college certificate or an Ontario College Certificate, it is recommended that graduates of the Ontario College Certificate programs have been engaged in learning that incorporates some breadth beyond the vocational field of study.

In programs of instruction leading to either an Ontario College Diploma or an Ontario College Advanced Diploma, it is required that graduates have been engaged in learning that exposes them to at least one discipline outside their main field of study and increases their awareness of the society and culture in which they live and work. This will typically be accomplished by students taking 3 to 5 courses (or the equivalent) designed discretely and separately from vocational learning opportunities.

This general education learning would normally be delivered using a combination of required and elective processes.

Purpose

The purpose of General Education in the Ontario college system is to contribute to the development of citizens who are conscious of the diversity, complexity and richness of the human experience; who are able to establish meaning through this consciousness; and who, as a result, are able to contribute thoughtfully, creatively and positively to the society in which they live and work.

General Education strengthens students' essential employability skills, such as critical analysis, problem solving and communication, in the context of an exploration of topics with broad-based personal and/or societal importance.

Themes

The themes listed below will be used to provide direction to colleges in the development and identification of courses that are designed to fulfill the General Education Requirement for programs of instructions.

Each theme provides a statement of Rationale and offers suggestions related to more specific topic areas that could be explored within each area. These suggestions are neither prescriptive nor exhaustive. They are included to provide guidance regarding the nature and scope of content that would be judged as meeting the intent and overall goals of General Education.

1. Arts in Society:

Rationale:

The capacity of a person to recognize and evaluate artistic and creative achievements is useful in many aspects of his/her life. Since artistic expression is a fundamentally human activity, which both reflects and anticipates developments in the larger culture, its study will enhance the student's cultural and self-awareness.

Content:

Courses in this area should provide students with an understanding of the importance of visual and creative arts in human affairs, of the artist's and writer's perceptions of the world and the means by which those perceptions are translated into the language of literature and artistic expression. They will also provide an appreciation of the aesthetic values used in examining works of art and possibly, a direct experience in expressing perceptions in an artistic medium.

2. Civic Life:

Rationale:

In order for individuals to live responsibly and to reach their potential as individuals and as citizens of society, they need to understand the patterns of human relationships that underlie the orderly interactions of a society's various structural units. Informed people will have knowledge of the meaning of civic life in relation to diverse communities at the local, national and global level and an awareness of international issues and the effects of these on Canada, as well as Canada's place in the international community.

Content:

Courses in this area should provide students with an understanding of the meaning of freedoms, rights and participation in community and public life, in addition to a working knowledge of the structure and function of various levels of government (municipal, provincial, national) in a Canadian and/or in an international context. They may also provide an historical understanding of major political issues affecting relations between the various levels of government in Canada and their constituents.

3. Social and Cultural Understanding:

Rationale:

Knowledge of the patterns and precedents of the past provide the means for a person to gain an awareness of his or her place in contemporary culture and society. In addition to this awareness, students will acquire a sense of the main currents of their culture and that of other cultures over an extended period of time in order to link personal history to the broader study of culture.

Content:

Courses in this area are those that deal broadly with major social and cultural themes. These courses may also stress the nature and validity of historical evidence and the variety of historical interpretation of events. Courses will provide the students with a view and understanding of the impact of cultural, social, ethnic or linguistic characteristics.

4. Personal Understanding:

Rationale:

Educated people are equipped for life-long understanding and development of themselves as integrated physiological and psychological entities. They are aware of the ideal need to be fully functioning persons: mentally, physically, emotionally, socially, spiritually and vocationally.

Content:

Courses in this area will focus on understanding the individual: his or her evolution; situation; relationship with others; place in the environment and universe; achievements and problems; and his or her meaning and purpose. They will also allow students the opportunity to study institutionalized human social behaviour in a systematic way. Courses fulfilling this requirement may be oriented to the study of the individual within a variety of contexts.

5. Science and Technology:

Rationale:

Matter and energy are universal concepts in science, forming a basis for understanding the interactions that occur in living and non-living systems in our universe. Study in this area provides an understanding of the behaviour of matter that provides a foundation for further scientific study and the creation of broader understanding about natural phenomena

Similarly, the various applications and developments in the area of technology have an increasing impact on all aspects of human endeavour and have numerous social, economic and philosophical implications. For example, the operation of computers to process data at high speed has invoked an interaction between machines and the human mind that is unique in human history. This and other technological developments have a powerful impact on how we deal with many of the complex questions in our society.

Content:

Courses in this area should stress scientific inquiry and deal with basic or fundamental questions of science rather than applied ones. They may be formulated from traditional basic courses in such areas of study as biology, chemistry, physics, astronomy, geology or agriculture. As well, courses related to understanding the role and functions of computers (e.g., data management and information processing) and assorted computer-related technologies should be offered in a non-applied manner to provide students with an opportunity to explore the impact of these concepts and practices on their lives.
